This Manual and Directory has been prepared by the Pastor of the church, with the assistance of a Committee of Ladies and Gentlemen. It is dedicated to the congregation of the First Reformed [Dutch] Church of Schenectady, and is issued in the hope that it may promote the social and spiritual prosperity of all who worship with us, and develop still further the spirit and practice of christian fellowship. In rounding out the second century of our Church's history, let us all seek to cultivate anew the duties of christian fraternity and hospitality.

The Lord bless thee and keep thee:

The Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee:

The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace —Num. 6: 24-26.

One is yonr Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.

Who is my mother? and who are my bretnren?

And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have love you, that ye also love one another.

By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.—Jesus.

To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.—Heb. 13: 16.

Love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous:—I Pet. 3: 18.

And above all these things put on charity which is the bond of perfectness.—Col. 3: 14.

Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.—Gal. 6: 1, 2.

For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death.—Ps. 48: 14.

IT is very difficult in an undertaking of this kind to avoid mistakes, and secure absolute correctness. We ask our friends who find their names omitted, misspelled, or wrongly placed, to be lenient, and ascribe the error to oversight and not to intent.

At a slight expense this little pamphlet may be bound in cloth or leather, and blank leaves added for further record, and permanent use.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

Long before the flats of the Mohawk, or the valley of of the Hudson were imprinted by the white man's foot, the Indians had given the name Schenectady to the land on which the city of Albany now stands. The word means "beyond, or, through the pine plains or barrens." The strip of sandy and rocky country between the site of this city and that of Albany, made it proper to apply the name to either extremity, east or west. The name Schenectady was with propriety retained by the Dutch settlers, who came from Beverwyck (Albany) to found a city on the banks of the Mohawk.

The country around the chosen site was a rich hunting ground for deer and beaver, and the Indians were very numerous in and around the present city boundaries. The Dutch were not slow to notice the teemiug fertility of the "Groote Vlachte" (Great Flats) which was the name they gave to the river flats from Schenectady to Utica, which was then the "far west."

In 1661 Arendt Van Curler or Corlear, a Hollander, bought from the Indians the entire Mohawk val'ey So great was the good influence of Van Curler among the Imdians, that for many years they were in the habit of addressing the Dutch and afterwards the English governors as "Corlear."

The first settlers came to Schenectady in the Spring of 1662, and were at first put to great discomfort by one of the heavy floods of the river. They made a contract, dated May 8, 1663, to till the soil, but not to trade with the Indians. The settlement was surveyed and allotted to fifteen persons, who built their houses inside the stockade west of Ferry street. From the name of its founder the village was known among the French, and many Hollanders and English, as "Corlear."

At first the settlers had no church, but met for worship in private houses. The dominies in Albany came up to "the Dorp" once a month, or once in six weeks to preach, administer the communion, and baptize and catechise the children. Often the people here would make a trip to Albany to attend service, or have their children baptized, occupying two days in the journey.

The church was most probably formally organized by Dominie Gideon Schaets, of the First Dutch Church in Albany, who occasionally preached in Schenectady, from 1662 to 1684. Certain it is that the church was in good working order, some time before the date inscribed upon the oldest extant record, viz: 1681, which is an account of some lands belonging to the church. In the deacon's book of the year 1684, we read of charges made for fencing the burial ground and for building materials and work done on the church edifice which stood at the junction of State and Church streets. The first settled pastor was installed overthe church during this same year. His name was Petrus Tassemaker (Thesschenmaecker). This, our first dominie, was a graduate of the University of Leyden, and had labored in the ministry at Kingston, N. Y., in Dutch Guiana, S. A., and on Staten Island. He was pastor over the Schenectady church six years.

On Saturday night, Feb. 9, 1690, a party of three hundred French and Indians, having traveled from Montreal on snowshoes, attacked the village, burned the houses, and murdered the people without distinction of age or sex. Among the victims was the dominie, whose head was cloven by a tomahawk. His body was tossed back into the burning house and consumed to the shoulder-blades. A son and grandson of Dominie Schaets were also among the victims. Sixty persons were killed, and twenty-seven taken prisoners to Canada. The only house left standing unburnt, was at the south-west corner of Church and Front streets.

In spite of their poverty and desolation the surviving settlers, with true Dutch pluck, came back in the Spring, planted their crops, rebuilt the little church and began anew.

During the next ten years the people were too few and poor to sustain a settled pastor, but Dominie Dellius, of the First Dutch Church in Albany, preached for them about once a month, from 1690 to 1699, when Dominie Bernardus Freeman, or Freerman, was called from Holland, by the First Dutch Church in Albany. In his call, it was stipulated that he should administer the sacrament and preach four times a year "at a dorp named Schenectady." Dominie Freeman, however, made his home in Schenectady, and his first official act is recorded in our church books under date of July 28, 1700. During the time of his ministry at Schenectady, Dominie Freeman was also a most faithful and laborious missionary among the Mohawk Indians with whom he had great influence. He mastered their language thoroughly, and translated parts of the bible, prayers and English liturgy, in their tongue. The records of our church show that a large number of the Indians were converted and baptized. At the communion in those days the dusky Mohawks partook of the same elements with the whites around the communion table. They did not sit at the same board, for the custom then was for communicants to stand while receiving the bread and wine. The dominie gave the blessing and parts of the service in both Dutch and Mohawk. The pappooses of the Indians and the children of the settlers were often baptized together or catechized at the same time by the same minister. Dominie Freeman published a short volume of sermons in Dutch, entitled "The Balances of God's Grace," and a little book called "The Mirror of Self-knowledge," and some tracts and translations of parts of the bible in the Mohawk tongue.

The pulpit was next supplied by Dominie Johannes Lydius, from 1702 to 1709. As early as June 13, 1702, he is called "Minister of the Dutch Reformed Church at Schenectady"—probaby as an alternate with Dominie Freeman, as both were active missionaries among the Indians of the Five Nations.

For the next five years, (1709–1714), the visits of a Dutch dominie to "the Dorp," were very rare. At this time English soldiers garrisoned the fort, then situated at the junction of Ferry and Front streets. The Rev. Thomas Barclay, an English clergyman, thus writes to London under date of Sept. 16, 1710: "At Schenectady I preach once a month, where there is a garrison of forty soldiers, besides about sixteen English and about one hundred Dutch families. They are all of them my constant hearers. There is a convenient and well built [Dutch] church, which they freely give me the use of."

In 1715 Dominie Thomas Brower was settled as pastor, preaching eight years and probably longer. At the same time the lot on which the church now stands was purchased, with the dwelling then upon it for a parsonage. The house thus purchased, June 23, 1715, was occupied by successive ministers of the church for nearly 100 years.

Dominie Brower died in this city in 1728. The church then called Rev. Reinhardt Erickson (Erickzon), who held the pastorate from 1728 to 1736, during which many were added to the church.

On the 13th of June 1734, was dedicated the third church edifice. It stood at the junction of Union and Church streets, both the other two having been on the site where State and Church streets meet. The new building was a massive stone structure with one door opening on the north, and one on the east, its vane being surmounted by the cock of St. Nicholas. A picture of this edifice in stained glass may now be seen in the tower room of the church. Each of the first three edifices were built in the middle of the street, and pierced with loop holes for musketry, so as to sweep the passages to the church in case of attack by red or white enemies. In times of danger the men went armed to church, with their rifles over their shoulder. Inside were high box pews, the sexes were separated, and the dominie preached with an hour glass, set in an iron bracket projecting from the pulpit. In winter, the women brought foot stoves with them for warmth and comfort.

During the same year, King George II of England, granted the charter under which our church holds her corporate powers. It is still preserved among the church archives.

Rev. Cornelius Van Santvoord was called from Staten Island to the pastorate in 1740, and filled it till 1752. He was a graduate of the University of Leydon, and an elegant scholar, author and translator as well as a faithful pastor. He preached fluently in English, Dutch and French. He died while in the ministry, Jan. 6, 1752, and was buried, as was then the custom, under the floor of the vestibule of the church. He was the last of the dominies of our church who came from Holland.

English now began to be largely spoken in the colonies, and New York having been for a century under English control, emigration from Holland had slackened and almost ceased. The children for two generations past had been studying their catechism in English, and now desired a minister who could preach in English.

The Rev. Barent Vrooman, the next pastor, was a born and bred American, and a native of Schenectady. He began his ministry in 1754, and served the church for thirty years, covering the revolutionary period. He died in this city, Nov. 13, 1784.

Rev. Dirk Romeyn, the next pastor, was also a born and bred American, educated at Princeton, and licensed by the American classes in 1766. He was in the prime of his powers when called to the church in Schenectady, being then forty years old. Dr. Romeyn was a fine scholar, and took the lead in this State, of the support and patronage of classical learning. The church responded to their pastor's enterprise with enthusiasm, and established the first academy in this city. It was located at the northwest corner of Ferry and Union streets. Dr. Romeyn was greatly interested in the formation of Union College, the germ of which was the academy established by him and the Dutch Church. The church acted a most generous part, and presented the buildings and grounds of the academy to the college. During his pastorate Dr. Romeyn also served as Professor of Theology in the Seminary of New Brunswick. During the years 1794–97, the church employed as assistant pastor, the Rev. Jacob Sickles, a young man, when called, of twenty-two years of age. Dr. Romeyn died in 1804. The succeeding pastors were Rev. J. H. Mayer (Meier), 1803–6, and Rev. Cornelius Bogardus, 1808–11. Both of these latter, and Mr. Sickles, were young men, and among the first graduates of our Theological Seminary then under the head of Dr. Livingston, and the oldest Theological Seminary in the United States.

The next pastor was a graduate of the infant Union College in Schenectady, and of our Theological Seminary at New Brunswick. It was Rev. Jacob Van Vechten who was installed, Jan. 8. 1814, the same year in which the fourth church edifice was erected on the spot now occupied by the present structure. In the tower room may be seen pictures in stained glass of three of the edifices. In 1814 also, the communicants living in Rotterdam, left the parent church and organized the First Reformed Dutch Church of that township. In the Summer of 1817, our Sunday school was organized, and some who attended its first session are still living.

Dr. Van Vechten was the first minister of our church who preached wholly in English. After a pastorate of thirty-four years, he resigned his charge, March 6, 1849, and was succeeded by the Rev. J. R. Taylor, who resigned in 1853. The first and only pastorate of Rev. Julius Seelye, now President of Amherst College, was over this church from 1854–58. Rev. Edward Seelye, cousin of the above who had been called and declined five years before, began his labors, Nov. 1, 1858. Exactly two years after the destruction of the old edifice by fire, (Aug. 6, 1861), the present massive and beautiful structure, the fifth in the history of the church, was dedicated to the service of Almighty God. Mr. Seelye died, Aug. 10, 1864. He was succeeded by Rev. Denis Wortman, in 1865, whose health failing under the arduous labors of the pastorate, he resigned in 1870.

Rev. Ashbel G. Vermilye was called in 1871, and served the church until Dec. 4, 1877, when he resigned. The present pastor, Rev. William Elliot Griffis, a graduate of Rutgers College (1865–69), student in New Brunswick Theological Seminary (1869–70), in Japan, 1870–74, graduate of Union Theological Seminary, New York City (1875–77), was called May 1, ordained and installed May 31, 1877.

Since its organization in 1680, the church has had eighteen pastors. Six died in the ministry at Schenectady and their sepulchres are with us to this day. Two held the pastorate for over thirty years, one during twenty, and one for ten years. Five are still living. A number of young men, sons of families in the church, have become ministers of the gospel. Of about one hundred and twenty-five ministers of the Reformed Church who were graduates of Union College, the majority communed in, or were members of the First Reformed Dutch Church. Most of the pastors of the church, in addition to their writings for the pulpit, left behind them printed volumes in Dutch, Indian or English, as memorials of studious and devoted lives, which served or are serving their purpose in their day and generation.

In surveying the history of well nigh two hundred eventful years, we have cause for gratitude and thanksgiving to God, for all his mercies in the past. To the future we may look with hope, and expect as in the past, but with richer measure the blessing of the Heavenly Father, which enriches, without adding a sorrow. In less than two years, from this date, our church will celebrate her double centennial, and begin the third century of her work and history. "Hereto assist us Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, in whose name, we offer all our prayers."

"Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake."

Pastor's study, Feb. 15, 1878.

GENERAL HINTS.

1. It is the purpose of the pastor to visit every family of the church once every year, and oftener if there be special reasons for it. In case of sickness and affliction, send for him, or call for the elders, they will be glad to visit you.

2. Members of the church who are about to leave the city, either temporarily or permanently, will please notify the pastor and elders, of their intentions, to prevent needless anxiety, and that they may be remembered. If you leave the church take your letter of dismissal.

3. Every family should be loyal to the interests and enterprises of the Reformed Church, and if possible, subscribe to the Christian Intelligencer or Sower.

4. Children may be presented for baptism on the first Sabbath morning after communion, or, in special cases, at any regular church service. Always furnish the pastor beforehand, with a slip of paper on which are plainly written:

1. The full names of both parents.
2. The name of the child.
3. The date of birth.

Please not forget this. The Church Record of Baptisms and Marriages extends back to A. D. 1680. Help us to keep the record true and complete.
